

Borophene Nanosheets vs 2D hybrids

Roberto GUNNELLA - University of Camerino

The electron deficiency of boron atoms in the borophene structure has made the use of metal substrates in the growth process inevitable. To overcome this aspect a special emphasis will be given on the borophene-based hybrids with other 2D materials and nanoparticles aiming to manipulate borophene for tailored applications.