

Majorana fermions in filamentary low dimensional superconductors

Marco GRILLI - Sapienza University of Rome

Some two-dimensional superconducting electron liquids acquire a inhomogeneous filamentary structure. In the presence of longitudinal magnetic fields and of Rashba spin-orbit coupling, the filaments endpoints may host a random assembly of Majorana fermions, whose properties are currently investigated.