Marco MAGONI - CV

Marco Magoni is currently a PhD student in Physics at the University of Ferrara, specializing in the application of machine learning to chemoresistive sensors. Throughout my doctoral studies, he has extensively collaborated on projects focused on the calibration and detection of various gas concentrations in complex environments, both indoors and outdoors. His research aims to enhance sensor performance and accuracy through advanced data-driven techniques.