

Francesco Puoci is an Italian scientist known for his work in biomedical sciences, particularly in the field of pharmacology and chemistry. He is a professor at the University of Calabria in the Department of Pharmacy, Health, and Nutritional Sciences. His research focuses on developing advanced polymers, particularly for medical applications, and molecularly imprinted polymers, which have been utilized in drug delivery system. He has authored numerous publications and book chapters, further establishing his expertise in applying advanced materials in biomedical contexts